

for every man just as the song is given to the canary bird or to the robin. But beyond the song these birds cannot go. And beyond the natural speech, or the words which nature gives to every one, the illiterate human being cannot go. His vocabulary is limited until he becomes a student. Then it begins to widen, and there is no boundary lines to its possibilities. The writer who imagines he can give additional tain. If the writer would give more prominence to the idea and less to the verbal frame; in other words, if he would use simple language, which by contrast would bring out the idea, he would not only economize his reader's mental energy, but would benefit himself by making himself more easily understood. The mind is not able to do more than one thing at a time and do it well. It cannot delve into mysteries of a many-syllabled word and comprehend the thought in a proper manner at once. Does the man say that he cannot write a book on any subject, that he is a failure? Or would not say that he can not find those small words. And it may be said that these small words have more force than the big words, because the soul of the tongue, or it would be more fit to say speech, is to be found in the short words more than in the long. In this case all the men who write on words think as one. They feel that the very life of the thing is shown in the short word. There is no long word that will take the place of buzz, soaf, roar, splash, acid, scrape, sough, whiff, bang, rough, smooth, keen, blunt, thin. Each of these words is like the thing which it sets

STRANGE PHENOMENA.

How Physical Manifestations are Produced by Psychological Forces.

The imaginings of the romancers have again and again been in time realized by the discoveries of the scientists, says the Boston Courier, and if the portentous idea that nothing can be fancied unless it really has somewhere an existence may be supposed to have any foundation, it is to be

A case in point is afforded by an experiment tried at the hospital of the Salpêtrière. A subject having been hypnotized, the physician conducting the experiment traced his name upon the patient's arm with a blunt probe, saying to him:

"This afternoon at 4 o'clock you will go to sleep and blood will then issue from your arms on the lines which I have now traced."

And it might be added that their justifica-

THE FATE OF A FLY.

Ludicrous Incident During Service at the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

man was in the midst of a most interesting sermon and the 10,000 eyes of the congregation were riveted in interested expectancy upon the expressive face and gesticulative figure of the noted divine. The stillness of death except for the exhortations of the pulpit orator pervaded the huge edifice. Down in the center of the church, almost crowded out of sight by her older neighbors, a black-eyed little tot of 4 years nestled close to her mother's skirts.

The hairless pate of an aged woman

It stood motionless for a second and then moved softly over the smooth and shining surface. The aged gentleman was deeply engrossed in Dr. Talmage's sermon, and for a while, evinced no uneasiness from the ticklish manners of the lively little insect.

Suddenly the old gentleman's arm shot up and came down with a resounding whack upon his cranium. The little fellow behind had been waiting for this, and sliding out of her seat before her mother could check her, she placed her chubby little hands on the old fellow's shoulders, and peering over into his face, unimpressed by the time and place, asked with much animation: "Did 'oo kill it?"

Some visitors were going through one of the New York public schools. The teacher of one of the classes stood up the pupils show off in a recitation in history. It was a rapid cross fire of question and answer about the dates of battles in the revolutionary war, and the visitors listened with interest and in silence. The last query by the teacher was addressed to an intelligent, bright faced little girl in a blue dress.

promptly replied Susie. Then one of the visitors put a query to Susie. It was "And what was the battle about, where was it fought?" "I don't know, ma'am. We won't have that in our lesson till next year," responded Susie, promptly and unabashed, and as if it were far to expect a little girl like her to know more than the dates of battles. This is a fair sample of the instruction in history given in the New York public school system.

AS WE UNDERSTAND IT.

THE RECENT APPOINTMENT OF H. F. BLISS AS POSTMASTER.

The Milwaukee Sentinel of this morning publishes the subjoined Washington dispatch concerning the Janesville post office, which is, so far as Mr. Bliss' friends are concerned, a fair and truthful statement of the case. The Sentinel's dispatch reads:

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Some light is thrown on the appointment of H. F. Bliss as postmaster at Janesville. When Representative Caswell moved in the matter of securing the removal of the democratic postmaster, Clark, early last March, the charge preferred against Clark was that he was a violent and obnoxious offensive partisan. Mr. Caswell shortly discovered that this administration was not acting under that relic of the Cleveland-Vilas regime, and that the idea of partisanship as grounds for removal were not known. Things looked decidedly blue for Mr. Caswell's case. He had at first, it seems, asked that in event of his securing the removal of Clark, H. F. Bliss, of the Janesville Gazette, be appointed. Officials here would not consent to that scheme as they considered it a bad job to turn out a democratic editor for offensive partisanship and appoint as his successor a Republican editor who might be open to the same charge. Then Caswell told President Harrison and Postmaster-General Wannamaker that he wanted Clark removed anyway, and if he could not have Bliss appointed, he wanted C. E. Bowles, who was a good man and a soldier. Little progress was made in securing the removal of Clark, however, until the other day a report came in from Postoffice Inspector Pollock in the Janesville postoffice. It showed irregularities there of a nature that warranted the prompt removal of Postmaster Clark. This caused a vacancy in the office, and under this situation there was no objection to appointing Representative Caswell's first choice, Editor Bliss, of the Gazette. So this was done. Clark was not removed as an offensive partisan, but on the strength of an adverse report by a postoffice inspector. It was not known here outside of a few in the postoffice department that Representative Caswell had first recommended Bliss and ascertaining later that if Clark was removed for offensive partisanship, Bliss could not be appointed, that he had made a second recommendation of Capt. Bowles; but this is the correct explanation of the appointment.

IT WAS NEVER THIS.
 SOME BELIEVE THAT THE MILLENNIUM IS ACTUALLY AT HAND.

And it may be so. In the natural course of events time and seasons change and alternate faster than we are aware. The vacation season is swiftly passing and we are now approaching the time for fall styles in clothing. The latest advice from old and experienced dealers in woolsens is that the styles and shades this fall are very beautiful. To verify this statement a reporter of the Gazette called upon the old reliable tailor and leader in styles in Janesville, J. L. Ford, to see if this report was substantially correct, and in looking through his book of samples the reporter was thoroughly satisfied that he could please the most fastidious.

For overcoats, styles are mostly monotone, fur beavers, chinchillas, kerseys, plain beavers, wide and narrow wools and worsteds. Suits will be mostly broken, coats, stripes, plaids and plain, silk and velvet vests, fancy stripe or plaid pants. The reporter saw by the samples that they were from both foreign and domestic manufacturers. His line of furnishings in hats and caps are the choicest productions in the market.

Mr. Ford has been in the business over thirty years and knows how to get up his garments in the latest and most artistic manner. Before getting your fall outfit call and see him. He takes great pleasure in showing his goods and pleasing his customers.

INDULGE IN A FAMILY QUARREL.
 THEY BRING THEIR TROUBLES BEFORE JUDGE PATTERSON.

The three sons, John, Arthur and James, of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Churchill, of this city, live on their farm about two miles northwest of the old Leyden house, ten miles distant from Janesville. A few days since Mrs. Churchill visited the farm with the intention of borrowing a horse and buggy to go and see a sick neighbor. This Arthur offered to let her take, but on going to John he was refused point blank, and John struck his mother in the face and inflicted a wound. Arthur, who was cultivating tobacco in an adjoining field, came over to interfere. John procured a double barrel shot gun and cocked both barrels. The other boys and the mother succeeded in getting the gun away from him, breaking it and pounding him severely on his face and body.

John came to the city, got out a warrant, and this afternoon under Sheriff Acheson, brought the whole family before Judge Patterson who refused to grant a trial unless they could get security for the costs which they are endeavoring to do at the time of going to press. The father and court tried to persuade them to settle the matter without further trouble, but the boys did not seem inclined to be advised by anybody.

THE DUDLEY CASE.
 AN OPINION FILED IN FAVOR OF MISS MARY V. DUDLEY—THE CONVEYANCE BROKEN.

Madison Democrat: Quite an interesting case was tried before the Dane county circuit court recently—that of Mrs. Mary V. Dudley against Mrs. Elizabeth H. Dudley. The nature of the case has been reported. In brief, Mrs. Charles Dudley, son of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Dudley, just before he married Miss "Dolly" Patten, then of Janesville, now of Chicago, conveyed to his mother his right to certain real estate in this city. Charles died soon after marriage, and his widow brought suit to break the conveyance, and has succeeded, leaving her a dower right, it is understood, the same as though no conveyance had been made by Charles to his mother.

THE WAR SONG CONCERT.
 A LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The war song concert given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church, was a decided success. More than four hundred people were present. The church was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. On the platform was noticed a number of Janesville's veteran singers, among whom were George K. Collins, and F. S. Stonfer. The genial "Dan" Bennett was also present, acted as master of ceremonies and assisted in the choruses.

A sprinkling of old soldiers was scattered through the audience, many of whom fought in their minds, many of their old battles over again in the familiar "Star Spangled Banner," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Tramp, Tramp," echoed from the large company of singers on the rostrum. Each number, from the beginning to the close, was excellently rendered and well received by the audience.

The program commenced with an organ duet by Mrs. M. D. Jones and Mrs. Clarence L. Clark, which was heartily applauded.

The male chorus, "Kingdom Come," was sung with much taste and this selection was well received.

Mrs. J. W. St. John delighted the audience with "The Star Spangled Banner." She was joined in the chorus by the large company on the platform.

The male quartette, consisting of Messrs. Vankirk, Blawson, Clark and Paris, sang "The Vesper Chorus" in a very pathetic and earnest manner, and this was heartily appreciated.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Mr. Christine Hawley and chorus, was beautiful, and kindled the fire in the eyes of many an old soldier present, as it brought to mind past reminiscences.

The vocal solo by Mr. E. O. Kimberley, "Who'll save the left?" was written by an eye witness of the scene in battle. It was rendered in an exquisite manner and loudly applauded. Messdames Wilson, Sweeney, Clark and Conrad sang the "Edged crest of blue," in a manner which delighted the audience. Mr. O. N. Vankirk and chorus then sang "Tramp, tramp, tramp," very acceptably. Some of the old soldiers wanted to rise to their feet and take up the line of march so successfully carried on nearly thirty years ago. This concluded part first.

Next came the organ solo by Miss Grace Bennett. This was loudly applauded and Miss Bennett was obliged to respond with a second selection.

The vocal solo, "I fear no foe," by Mr. F. L. Stonfer, was excellent, and this was followed by "When Johnnie Comes Marching Home," by Miss Frances Edwards and chorus, which was well received.

"Tenting on the old camp ground," by Messrs. Norcross, Collins, Needham and Paris, brought tears to the eyes of many old soldiers as it brought up memories of the past.

The "Battle Cry of Freedom," by Mrs. W. S. Jeffris and chorus, was well rendered.

This was followed by a chorus "Dixie," which was heartily and cheerfully executed.

"The Old Folks at Home," by the Baptist choir, was one of the best selections of the evening.

The chorus and audience joined in the closing selection our national hymn "America."

Mrs. M. D. Jones presided at the piano, and was assisted in some of the accompaniments by Mrs. Clarence L. Clark at the organ.

The concert was a success in all its details.

NEW MUSIC.
 FROM F. R. MCGARGO & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

We have just received the following bright and sparkling compositions from the popular music publishers, F. R. McGargo & Co., Boston, Mass., who will be pleased to mail their descriptive music catalogue free of charge to any address sent.

"My Last Message" song with chorus by I. P. Skelley. A beautiful story, well told in sweet melody, depicting in a most realistic manner a sad and pathetic incident of the Johnstown flood.

"The Songs My Mother Sang," song and refrain, words and music by Lizzie Paine. A delightfully original song suitable for parlor, concert or friends, and combining an exquisite taste with one of the most charming melodies.

"My Love's Last Smile." Song with chorus, by George B. Nevins. This is a ballad of rare excellence, platonic in style, classical and grand in harmony, thoughtlessly mastered and retained by the singer, a truly beautiful work.

"York Dance, the Newport." For the piano, by Clifford Hale. A charming concatenation of jingling chords and phrasing that form one delightful whole, far surpassing anything of its kind yet seen.

"Good bye My Honey, I'm Gone." A delightful Schottische, by America's famous writer, Monroe H. Rosenfeld, and which was created from this author's popular song of the same title. It is both delightfully unique and original, and is without exception, the happiest combination of musical jingle and rhythm ever introduced in modern melody.

We also notice with pleasure, a beautiful set of waltzes by the same author, entitled the "Dramatic News Waltzes" and which no dancer will love more popular, especially with lovers of pleasing, captivating dance music.

THE WEATHER.
 At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 55 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with west wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 80 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with southwest wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 69 and 85 degrees above zero.

AS WE UNDERSTAND IT.

THE RECENT APPOINTMENT OF H. F. BLISS AS POSTMASTER.

The Milwaukee Sentinel of this morning publishes the subjoined Washington dispatch concerning the Janesville post office, which is, so far as Mr. Bliss' friends are concerned, a fair and truthful statement of the case. The Sentinel's dispatch reads:

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Some light is thrown on the appointment of H. F. Bliss as postmaster at Janesville. When Representative Caswell moved in the matter of securing the removal of the democratic postmaster, Clark, early last March, the charge preferred against Clark was that he was a violent and obviously offensive partisan. Mr. Caswell shortly discovered that this administration was not acting under that relic of the Cleveland-Vilas regime, and that the idea of partisanship as grounds for removal were not known. Things looked decidedly blue for Mr. Caswell's case. He had at first, it seems, asked that in event of his securing the removal of Clark, H. F. Bliss, of the Janesville Gazette, be appointed. Officials here would not consent to that scheme as they considered it a bad job to turn out a democratic editor for offensive partisanship and appoint as his successor a Republican editor who might be open to the same charge. Then Caswell told President Harrison and Postmaster-General Wannamaker that he wanted Clark removed anyway, and if he could not have Bliss appointed, he wanted C. E. Bowles, who was a good man and a soldier. Little progress was made in securing the removal of Clark, however, until the other day a report came in from Postoffice Inspector Falcifer in the Janesville postoffice. It showed irregularities there of a nature that warranted the prompt removal of Postmaster Clark. This caused a vacancy in the office, and under this situation there was no objection to appointing Representative Caswell's first choice, Editor Bliss, of the Gazette. So this was done. Clark was not removed as an offensive partisan, but on the strength of an adverse report by a postoffice inspector. It was not known here outside of a few in the postoffice department that Representative Caswell had first recommended Bliss and ascertaining later that if Clark were removed for offensive partisanship, Bliss could not be appointed, that he had made a second recommendation of Capt. Bowles; but this is the correct explanation of the appointment.

IT WANKS EVERYTHING.

SOME BELIEVE THAT THE MILLENIUM IS ACTUALLY AT HAND.

And it may be so. In the natural course of events times and seasons change and alternate faster than we are aware. The vacation season is swiftly passing and we are now approaching the time for fall styles in clothing. The latest advice from old and experienced dealers in woollens is that the styles and shades this fall are very beautiful. To verify this statement a reporter of the Gazette called upon the old reliable tailor and leader in styles in Janesville, J. L. Ford, to see if his report was substantially correct, and in looking through his book of samples the reporter was thoroughly satisfied that he could please the most fastidious.

For overcoats, styles are mostly monotone, fur, beavers, chinchillas, kersays, plain beavers, wide and narrow wools and worsteds. Suits will be mostly broken, coats, stripe, plaids and plain, silk and velvet vests, fancy stripe or plaid pants. The reporter saw by the samples that they were from both foreign and domestic manufacturers. His line of furnishings in hats and caps are the choicest productions in the market.

Mr. Ford has been in the business over thirty years and knows how to get up his garments in the latest and most artistic manner. Before getting your fall outfit call and see him. He takes great pleasure in showing his goods and pleasing his customers.

INDULGE IN A FAMILY QUARREL.

THEY BRING THEIR TROUBLES BEFORE JUDGE PATTERSON.

The three sons, John, Arthur and James, of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Churchill, of this city, live on their farm about two miles northwest of the old Leyden house, ten miles distant from Janesville. A few days since Mrs. Churchill visited the farm with the intention of borrowing a horse and buggy to go and see a sick neighbor. This Arthur offered to let her take, but on going to John she was refused point blank, and John struck his mother in the face and inflicted a wound. Arthur, who was cultivating tobacco in an adjoining field, came over to interfere. John procured a double barrel shot gun and cocked both barrels. The other boys and the mother succeeded in getting the gun away from him, breaking it and pounding him severely on his face and body.

John came to the city, got out a warrant, and this afternoon under Sheriff Aboehoe, brought the whole family before Judge Patterson who refused to grant a trial unless they could get security for the costs which they are endeavoring to do at the time of going to press. The father and court tried to persuade them to settle the matter with out further trouble, but the boys did not seem inclined to be advised by anybody.

THE DUDLEY CASE.

AN OPINION FILED IN FAVOR OF MISS MARY V. DUDLEY—THE CONVEYANCE BROKEN.

Madison Democrat: Quite an interesting case was tried before the Dane county circuit court recently—that of Mrs. Mary V. Dudley against Mrs. Elizabeth H. Dudley. The nature of the case has been reported. In brief, Mrs. Charles Dudley, son of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Dudley, just before he married Miss "Dolly" Patten, then of Janesville, now of Chicago, conveyed to his mother his right to certain real estate in this city. Charles died soon after marriage, and his widow brought suit to break the conveyance, and has succeeded, leaving her a dower right, it is understood, the same as though no conveyance had been made by Charles to his mother.

THE WAR SONG CONCERT.

A LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The war song concert given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church, was a decided success. More than four hundred people were present. The church was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. On the platform was noticed a number of Janesville's veteran singers, among whom were George K. Collins, and F. S. Stonfer. The genial "Dan" Bennett was also present, acted as master of ceremonies and assisted in the choruses.

A sprinkling of old soldiers was scattered through the audience, many of whom fought in their minds, many of their old battles over again as the familiar "Star Spangled Banner," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Tramp, Tramp," echoed from the large company of singers on the rostrum. Each number, from the beginning to the close, was excellently rendered and well received by the audience.

The program commenced with an organ duet by Mrs. M. D. Jones and Mrs. Clarence L. Clark, which was heartily applauded.

The male chorus, "Kingdom Come," was sung with much taste and this selection was well received.

Mrs. J. W. St. John delighted the audience with "The Star Spangled Banner." She was joined in the chorus by the large company on the platform.

The male quartette, consisting of Messrs. Vankirk, Slavson, Clark and Park, sang "The Yeast Chant" in a very pathetic and earnest manner, and this was heartily appreciated.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Mrs. Christine Hawley and chorus, was beautiful, and kindled the fire in the eyes of many an old soldier present, as it brought to mind past reminiscences. The vocal solo, "I fear no foe," by Mrs. F. L. Stonfer, was excellent, and was followed by "When Johnnie Comes Marching Home," by Miss Frances Edwards and chorus, which was well received.

"Tenting on the old camp ground," by Messrs. Norcross, Collins, Needham and Paris, brought tears to the eyes of many old soldiers and brought up memories of the past.

The "Battle Cry of Freedom," by Mrs. W. S. Jeffris and chorus, was well rendered.

This was followed by a chorus "Dixie," which was heartily and cheerfully executed.

"The Old Folks at Home," by the Baptist choir, was one of the best selections of the evening.

The chorus and audience joined in the closing selection our national hymn "America."

Mrs. M. D. Jones presided at the piano, and was assisted in some of the accompaniments by Mrs. Clarence L. Clark at the organ.

The concert was a success in all its details.

Johns Caesar, the man who was gifted with his pen as he was mighty with his sword, was born on the 12th of this month. His skill reformed the calendar, when it had become so badly out of gear that no one knew the vernal equinox from the summer solstice, and when he had been killed—the victim of one of those parties, the most wickedness that men miscall patriotism—Augustus named one of the grand months of the year in his honor, not forgetting of course, to give to himself the equal honor of naming the next month—August.

Charles Augustus called the month of July Hey Monday, because it was the month of the hay harvest; the Anglo-Saxons called it Mead Month, or the month when the meads were in bloom.

In spite of its ardent sunshine and its most stifling airs, July is one of the most beautiful months in the year. The poets have called it "the month when the year's life has its fullest and most perfect development. The trees are in full perfection of foliage, the fields are waving grain are taking on the rich blue of ripeness; the flowers are ablaze in the meadows and on the hillsides, and the birds are singing and gaily-winged butterflies are sport on the flowers, the bees are busy on the abundant blossoms. The song of birds is not as gay in the full-leaved wood as in June. The pretty songsters are oppressed with the intense heat, and besides the cares of life sit heavily on their little hearts for they are reeling and nursing their young broods.

For most of us this beautiful season of the year is a time of weariness, often of restlessness, and the heart is not so obedient to the commands of nature. She bids us pause at this time in our toilsome labors in pursuit of wealth, and rejoice in her sweetness. Go forth then ye weary dwellers in cities, to the woods and glens where summer holds her court. Bask in the sweet breath and be refreshed; draw on her fountain of abundant life and renew your spent vitality. Learn from her how beautiful
